

The next President will likely appoint as many as three Supreme Court justices.

Will those appointees uphold the Constitution, or re-write it from the bench to advance their own radical agenda?

You get to decide...

... with your vote for President and U.S. Senate.

Dare We Now Remain Silent?

Perhaps the most profound and long-lasting impact the next president will have on the nation will be his Supreme Court appointments.

Consider some of the issues the Court may decide in the years ahead:

- Create a federal right to homosexual marriage and require all 50 states and ultimately all churches and religious organizations to recognize it.
- Force taxpayers to fund abortions.
- Rule education scholarship programs for private religious schools unconstitutional.
- Create constitutional rights to physician-assisted suicide and human cloning.
- Force the Boy Scouts, churches and ministry organizations to hire practicing homosexuals.
- Strip “under God” from the Pledge of Allegiance.
- Give international criminal courts priority over the laws and Constitution of the United States.
- Diminish private property rights.

Dare we remain silent?
